THE STREET FAIR

A WEEK OF CARNIVAL, FUN AND FROLIC

A moderately attended meeting was held in the council chamber last evening to consider the matter of holding a street fair in Ocala, say the second week in December, and to listen to Mr. Sampson, who has made a business of this kind of work.

M. Fishel, president of the Board of Trade, presided and introduced Mr. Sampson, who explained what was necessary to get up such an entertainment and what it will cost the business men, hotel and restaurant people of the town. He thought to give a week's entertainment would take $1000 to constitute a program of paid and free attractions that would draw people from fifty to seventy-five miles around; Mr. Sampson was so sanguine of its drawing power that people would be here from Tampa and Jacksonville to revel in its festive, fascinating and pleasing festivities. Mr. Sampson divided the expense as follows: Free music by home and imported bands, day and night, $400; advertising, $200; lights for the square would have to be specially wired to make that portion of the town at night bright as day and so arranged as to create a novel and startling array of electrical illumination. The other $200 would be used for incidentals, such as attractions in the way of free shows, namely, the diving horse or man, making a leap of eighty feet from a platform into a pool of water; the "Whirling Dervish," the "Fiddling Horse" and the boxing and pugilistic kangaroo, etc. Mr. Sampson agreed to get all the theatrical entertainments and amusements of that character who would come and agree to pay part of their receipts into a fund to assist in defraying the expenses of getting up the street fair. Then, too, he thought license for all kinds of privileges to do business, from outsiders, would create quite a sum.

For the work of telling us and showing us how to get up a street fair that would draw the very life out of the scrubs, including the dancing bears of the jungles, and set the people of this and neighboring counties wild to see the attractions in Ocala that week, he would charge 5 per cent. of the percentage that the different shows would contribute to the expense account from their gate receipts.

Of course the question of cheap excursion rates was a prime factor in determining whether Ocala would take the lead introducing the street fair in Florida, which for a number of years has been such a potent factor all over the northwest and is gradually creeping South and taking possession of many towns in our sunny land and proving not only a drawing card, but for the trade a very profitable one.

Those who took part in the proceedings were F. E. Harris, E. P. Thagard, Jake Gerig, D. S. Williams and Charles Rheinauer. The latter was particularly enthusiastic and couldn't see why the street fair wouldn't be a good thing for Ocala and her business interests and felt confident if the railroads could be induced to give liberal rates for Ocala on that occasion, the money could be secured to make the street fair a delirious success. He will consult the railroads today on the subject of rates.

Let Ocala seize the opportunity, which is ripe with golden returns.

A QUIVER OF QUERIES

BASHFUL BOOTS PROFOUNDS A PARCEL OF PROBLEMS

Editor Star: Appreciating the railroads in general, their kindness and courtesy to all except the traveling man, I would ask through your columns and at the same time ask those not in collusion with the railroads, why this discrimination?

Is it not true that most any reputable salesman along the road in Florida will give more business to the road than any freight solicitor in their employ? Is it not true that any old itinerant negro preacher gets better rates than the traveling man? Is it not true that any old theatrical troupe gets better rates than the traveling man? Is it not true that the same show people get their baggage (excess) cheaper than we do? Is it not a fact that they come once a year (only) and that we come three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, not counting the nights? Is it not a fact that they will be conceded more than is conceded the traveling man? Is it not a fact that the railroads will hold a train for a theatrical troupe? Is it not a fact that they will not hold a train for a traveling man? Don't the railroads give an advance agent free passage and baggage?

These are just a few of the queries I want answered and then I will ask some others and to conclude I would ask, do the railroads want the good will of the traveling men and are they catering to it in the shape of schedules, prices, etc., in Florida?
